Inspiration

How it's made

At Sempre, our glassware is a celebration of European craftsmanship, meticulously handcrafted to create pieces that are both functional and beautiful. Each item is made in Europe by skilled artisans who bring years of experience and dedication to their craft. Our glassware is handblown, ensuring that every piece is truly unique.

The process begins with the selection of premium raw materials which are melted at extremely high temperatures to form molten glass. This molten glass is carefully gathered onto a blowpipe, where our artisans skillfully hand blow each piece, shaping it with precision and care. This intricate process requires both technical expertise and a deep understanding of the material, allowing the glass to take on its final form while still pliable.

After the initial shaping, the glassware undergoes a slow cooling process in an annealing oven, which ensures its strength and durability. Once cooled, each piece is further refined through a hand-cutting process. This final touch, performed by our master craftsmen, involves carefully cutting the glass to create a naturally formed rim. This hand-cutting results in a rim that is unique to each piece, adding to the individuality and charm of the glassware.

The subtle variations in thickness, texture, and the naturally formed rim are not just characteristics but the hallmarks of handcrafted excellence. These details make every piece of Sempre glassware one-of-a-kind, offering a distinctive touch that enhances the beauty of any setting.

We believe that our glassware should do more than serve a function—it should tell a story of European artistry, tradition, and timeless elegance. Each piece, with its handblown form and hand-cut rim, is a testament to the care and skill that goes into every step of our process.

Please be advised that the images included in this catalogue are for reference only. As our glassware is handcrafted, there may be differences in colors, shapes, and textures in the final products.

Finishes

Each Sempre glass piece is individually mouth blown using traditional glassblowing techniques. Following our philosophy, each piece is unique, and no two are exactly the same. Variations in size, color and texture are to be expected and celebrated.

Temperature Sensitivity: Hot vs. Cold

Our handblown glassware is crafted with the utmost care, making each piece a work of art. Unlike industrial glass, this type of glassware is sensitive to sudden temperature changes. Abruptly transitioning from hot to cold, or vice versa, can cause the glass to crack or break. While our standard (clear) finish is suitable for serving hot beverages, we advise against using other finishes for hot drinks to ensure the longevity of your glassware.

Handling with Caution

Certain items, such as glass tubes, candle holders, and antlers, are carefully glued onto their glass bases. Please be aware that these connections are sensitive to temperature fluctuations and may become detached. Always carry and support these items by their base—never lift them without ensuring the base is fully supported. If detachment occurs despite careful handling, you can easily reattach the pieces using a two-component glass-on-glass adhesive.

Candles

Due to the artisanal production, our candleholders never have the exact same diameter, so it might be necessary to size down the candle's diameter by hand. Don't let the candles burn too closely to the candleholder to prevent the glass from cracking.
